graduate Economics & Decision Sciences Electives: Spring

Sports Economics: Dr. Polley (#57206, T/TH 11-12:15)
Offered for sports fans who find economics interesting and anyone who wants to know how economic incentives affect sports teams and leagues as well as public policy issues impacting professional and college athletes. Recommended for students considering advanced degrees in economics.

American Economic History: Dr. Polley
Examines the development of the American economy from colonial times to the present. Emphasis on the role of economic incentives in the creation of the modern American economy. Recommended for history majors, economics majors with an interest in history, and anyone who would like to learn more about the economics of industrialization, the Civil War, the Great Depression and other important episodes in American history.

Intermediate Microeconomic Theory: Dr. Westerhold
This course is a core requirement for Econ majors and is strongly recommended for students considering advanced degree programs. Students should complete STAT 171 and/or MATH 137 (business calculus) before taking this course.

Intermediate Macroeconomic Theory: Dr. Melkumian
This course is a core requirement for Econ majors and is strongly recommended for students considering advanced degree programs. Students should complete STAT 171 and/or MATH 137 (business calculus) before taking this course.

Managerial Economics: Dr. Rock
Recommended for students planning on going into business in a managerial role.

Economics of Poverty and Discrimination: Dr. Rock
Recommended for students interested in development issues and/or in learning practical tools of economic analysis.

Urban and Regional Economic Analysis: Dr. Gruendl