

Additional Career Planning Resources

The following web links will help you to acquire more relevant information as to what sort of career opportunities are available to you when choosing an academic major:

The Occupational Outlook Handbook \(U.S. Department of Labor\)

This site will provide specific information about careers including what the career entails, the education and training needed, the future outlook, and salaries.

O\*NET OnLine

This site will provide occupational information and allow the user to conduct a "skills search" to match-up with specific occupations.

MyPlan.com

This site has many useful resources including a Majors Database with "What Can I do With a Major In?". There are Career Databases and Self-Assessment Inventories.

Jobs Made Real

This website features thousands of videos of people describing their jobs. Also includes job forecasts and career information.

Career Info Net

On this site you will be able to obtain detailed information about specific jobs. Click on 'Occupational Information', go to 'Occupational Profile' and type in a specific job title, i.e. 'advertising sales agent'. Click on search and you will be asked to choose a state. Click on the appropriate state and continue. You will then be able to find out specific career information as well as salary information for the selected state and how it compares with the entire United States.

The Career Readiness Quiz

With this interactive site, you will be able to assess your skills and experience and how they relate to transitioning to the workforce. The information and websites are representative of typical career paths associated with each major and not a comprehensive list.

The websites listed are not maintained by the Career Development Office but are provided as a convenience to students.
